Attached is a completed Form PTO-1449. Following are comments on those references.

Lighter, Correll '949, and Correll '509 show a cover side flap that has a substantially shorter minimum height than the maximum height of the rear end wall and the side walls of the blank and box. However, neither discloses a blank with a shortened-height cover side flap with a free-swinging corner flap attached thereto and with that corner flap having a lower edge that is non-aligned with the lower edge of the cover side flap and, in the box format, is in contact with the bottom panel of the box, as recited in independent claims 10 and 16.

Deiger, Philips et al., and Correll '277 each show a side wall attached to a bottom panel and with a corner panel attached thereto and a connector panel attached to the bottom edge of the corner panel and an end wall attached to the bottom panel at an end wall fold line and an end flap attached to an end of the end wall at an end flap fold line. However, none of them disclose this type of structure in conjunction with a cover side flap having a minimum height that is substantially less than the maximum height of a cover side panel, as recited in independent claims 10 and 16.

Keefe Jr. et al., U.S. Patent Application Publication 2003/0015578 discloses a side wall structure having a panel with tab-like projections extending from a front end edge of that panel. However, they do not disclose a cover-locking structure comprising tab-like projections extending from a front end edge of a panel of a side wall structure that engage with tab engaging means disposed in a cover panel, and thereby hold a box cover in a closed disposition, as recited in independent claims 1, 5, and 9.
